

Why am I completing the Individual Core Values deliverable?

Once better defined, and shared with your family members, your core values will provide clarity for future decisions, improve communication and strengthen family unity. Defining individual core values is also the first step in identifying the family's shared core values, a critical element for success. Once completed, you and your family members will be able to clearly articulate, define and share the core values most important to each individual and improve the clarity of family communications. As these individual core values are defined and shared, the clarity will strengthen the understanding and bond between family members.

What is the Individual Core Values deliverable?

This analytical tool will identify, define and share the core values most important to you. These core values drive many decisions you make, words you say and actions you take. Core values serve as the foundation for assisting the family in identifying the shared core values of the entire family (This process is advanced by the coming Shared Core Values deliverable).

How is the Individual Core Values deliverable completed?

This deliverable consists of 20 questions. Each question will provide 6 statements and you are asked to select one of them. In the end, a visual display will provide insight into your set of individual core values to share with your family with a detailed definition of each.

Source: Dr. Robb Musgrave, "When Success Isn't Enough: How to build a living legacy". 2008 Legenis Holdings Publishers, Queensland, Australia